The Overnight Express: Chinese Inflation Rises Faster Than Expected

The following is a summary of the main economic events from the North American and Asia-Pacific sessions:

- Chinese headline CPI rises 2.7% year-over-year in February, accelerating from the prior month's 1.5% increase and outpacing calls for a 2.5% pickup.
- Australian economy creates 0.4k jobs in February, short of the prior month's 56.5k gain and expectations for a more modest 15.0k increase; unemployment rate rise to 5.3% from 5.2% the month prior, in line with forecasts.
- FT: Pimco's El Erian writes that dangers of growing government deficits "not yet sufficiently appreciated and understood" by public and governments; says without higher taxation/lower spending countries will be forced to use inflation to control debt.
- Bank of England inflation attitudes survey shows inflation expectations for the year ahead rise to 2.5% in February from 2.4% in November, the highest since late 2008; sterling rallies.
- Chinese February new loans fall to 700.1 billion yuan from 1390.0 billion the month prior, short of calls for a 600.0 billion level.
- Chinese retail sales advance 22.1% year-over-year in February, beyond expectations for an 18.1% increase, while industrial production rises 12.8%, short of calls for a 19.0% increase

- Final Japanese Q4 GDP revised down to a 0.9% quarter-over-quarter gain, further than expectations for a downward revision to 1.0% growth from the 1.1% pickup previously recorded; annualized GDP revised down to a 3.8% growth rate, also further than calls for a downward revision to 4.0% from 4.6%.
 - Greece's hospitals, airports and schools shut down in general strike protesting budget cuts.
 - BBG: Harvard professor Feldstein says euro's decline has been due to "irrational or panic selling" and that it's a "overreaction."
 - RBNZ keeps its official cash rate at 2.50% as expected; the central bank says the Kiwi economy is "recovering broadly" and inflation is "expected to track within the target range over the medium term"; the RBNZ also says it will begin to remove stimulus around the middle of 2010.
 - RBNZ predicts that Kiwi GDP will expand by an annualized 1.9% in Q1 of this year, and rise by an annualized 4.4% in Q1 of 2011.
 - U.S. Senate sends $138 billion bill to extend unemployment insurance benefits to the House of Representatives.
 - South Korean Central Bank leaves benchmark interest rate unchanged at 2.00%, as expected.
 - Global volume of forex trading increased by 17% between April and October 2009, according to a report from the Reserve Bank of Australia
- BP buys $7 billion worth of oil and gas assets in Brazil, the Gulf of Mexico and Azerbaijan from Devon Energy Corp. for $7 billion.
- On the back of a quiet session for Europe on Thursday, focus is likely to lie on the Swiss National Bank's interest rate decision at 8 a.m. EST.
 - Economists unanimously expect the central bank to maintain its benchmark 0.25% interest rate, leaving focus on the accompanying statement, released at 9 a.m. EST.
 - At the most recent statement on September 17, the central bank stated that it "is still aiming to keep the Libor within the lower end of this range, i.e. at approximately 0.25%. It will continue to provide the economy with a generous supply of liquidity and, if necessary, to purchase Swiss franc bonds with a view to reducing risk premia on long-term debt instruments issued by private sector borrowers. In addition, it will continue to act decisively to prevent any appreciation of the Swiss franc against the euro."
 - Any changes to these statements will impact the Franc, particularly if the SNB seems inclined to hike rates in the near future.
 - The North American session is looking busy on Thursday with market receiving the U.S. and Canadian trade balances, along with Canadian capacity utilization and U.S. jobless claims.
 - Central bankers will also be in focus with speeches from Bank of Canada Governor Mark Carney and New York Fed President William Dudley.
 - The day begins at 8:30 a.m. EST, with the U.S. trade deficit expected to widen to $41.0 billion in January from $40.2 billion the month prior.
 - Also, initial jobless claims for the week ending March 6 are expected to decline to 460k from 469k the week prior.

Thursday's Outlook:

FOREXTM Overnight Express

- Continuing claims for the week ending Feb. 27 are expected to remain unchanged at 4500k.
- North of the border, and simultaneous with the U.S. data, the Canadian capacity utilization rate is expected to jump to 70% in Q4 from 67.5% in Q3.
- Also, the Canadian international merchandise trade balance is expected to go into surplus at C$0.2 billion compared to the C$0.2 billion deficit the month prior.
- Then at 1:30 p.m. EST, Bank of Canada Governor Mark Carney will address students at Carleton University in Ottawa.
- At 4:35 p.m. EST, New York Fed President William Dudley (voter) will address the Society of Business Economists at an event in London, England.
- Finally, at 4:45 p.m. EST, New Zealand will publish its January retail sales report, which is expected to rise 0.5% month-over-month following a flat reading in December.
- Sales excluding autos are expected to increase by 0.7% compared to the prior 1.8% contraction.
